What is life?

. . . that relentless sequence of events, seemingly abstract and unrelated

. . . the continual process of growth and change which can be thwarted only by death

. . . the inexplicable continuity of hope and despair, of activity and dormancy

. . . the opportunity for both success and failure

. . . individual existence, destined by fate, determined by choice

. . . the challenge which each must accept himself

"Speed"

Joe
Well I'm
around here all my heart. You much and I really appreciate all your have done for the class of 1967. I won't be the only one missing you but I think and feel the whole school will miss you. You have more or less become a tremendous personality and you have few things that you cannot do. our friendship will continue after graduation
and write when you get a chance.
May God Bless you and keep you always.

your advisor
and friend
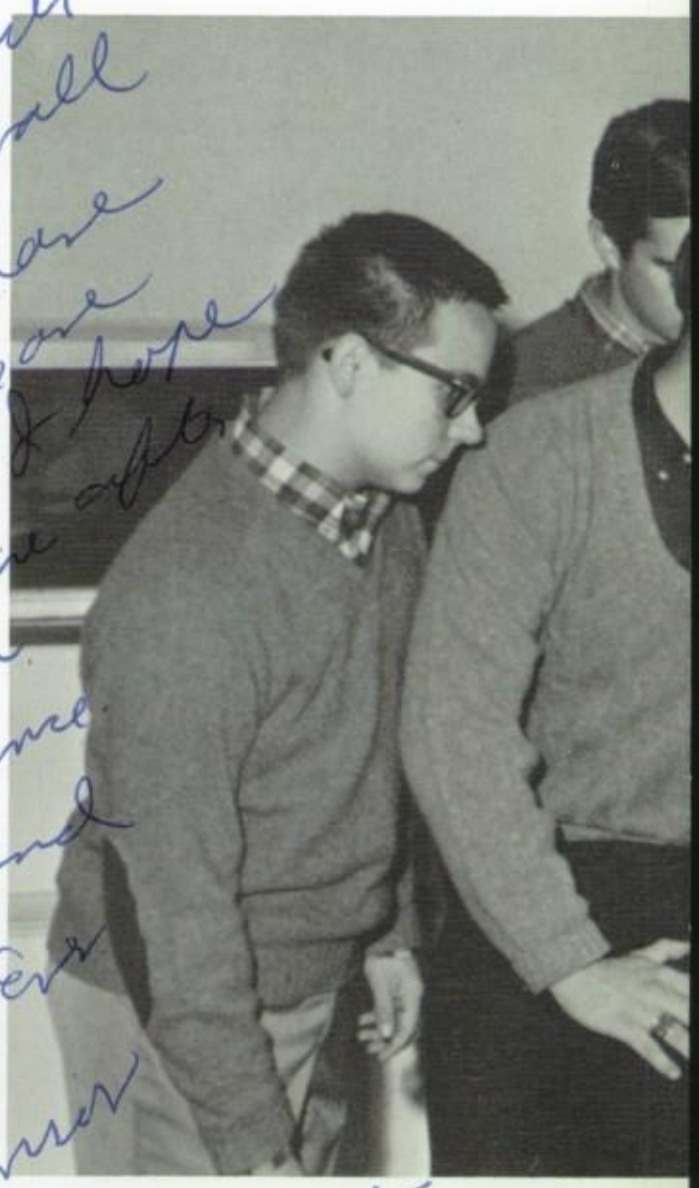
M Solomita



Mr. Solomita guides his seniors.

To the man who never failed us when we were in need of encouragement . . .
For the advice which gave significant meaning to our decisions . . .
To the man whose limitless enthusiasm was a major factor in our many successful activities . . .
For the patience with which he mediated our differences and understood our shortcomings . . .
To the man who earned our respect and admiration . . .
For the constant concern he showed for us individually and as a group . . .
To the man who was as much a friend to us as anyone could be . . .
For the energy and understanding with which he guided us during our four years at Southington High School . . .
To you, MR. ARMAND SOLOMITA, we dedicate the 1967 Chronicle with more appreciation than it is possible for us to express.

Joseph,
You've had to take a lot of kidding from your pals but you've always managed to get your own little jibes in. Penn State doesn't deserve you but then again neither does S HS. I've really enjoyed our little expeditions to Storrs, Holy Bowl, Bridgeport, New York, etc. You + Dori did a great job. I expect you'll get the Nobel Prize for yearbooks next year.

First of all Joe you've got a great look on your hands here, and I'd like to congradulate you. We have had a lot of fun and a few disagreements during all our plays, but that's all in the game. To wish you luck isn't necessary and say "I know you'll be a success" is an understatement, but I think you know what I mean.

Dear Seniors:

Our high school careers have just about terminated. I know that it would take many volumes to record all of the wonderful times and fond memories that we have shared. You have shown me by your constant progressive attitude that our four years together have not been in vain.

But this part of our life is over. We must now face our future and whatever it may hold for us. I, as well as many others, have much faith in the class of '67. I am confident that you will succeed in all that you attempt.

It has been a pleasure to serve you in these last two years we have been together. I would like to thank all of you who helped me when the time came.

May God Bless You Always.

Sincerely,
RONALD BERUBE
President, Class of 1967

I am the love of two,
Born as the fruit of that love.
I am the dawning of life,
Living the best of my days.
I know not hate nor fears, Comfort is all that I sense.
I feel my world of warmth.
This is my life.

I am the love of few,
Leaving the love that I knew.
I am the morning of life,
Doubting the things I am told.
I know not why men die, Reasons are all that I seek.
I feel my world of doubt.
This is my life.

I am the love of one,
Learning to share my small world.
I am the noontide of life,
Needing to bear a new love.
I want no pain nor tears,
Gone are the doubts of my youth.
I feel my world of hope.
This is my life.

I am the love of all,
Living the day to its end.
I am the twilight of life,
Weary of all except love.
I know that soon I must sleep, Slumber is all that I want.
I feel my world of peace.
This is my life.

Joe,

To a great person whom I've had the wonderful pleasure to know this year. I hope I can do as good an job on my book as you didon yours. Thank you for all the help and guidence you have given me this year, and I hope I can live up to your expectations and do a good job. Good luck at Penn State, and in all you undertake. (No, I don't have to wish you good luck because you will always have it.)

Thanks again for everything and I hope to see you in future years. Drop in next year and see me, and give me help. I'll need all I can get, probably. I'll be a pest for the rest of this year, so I hope you don't mind. Well, I've run out of space so I'd better end it here. God bless you,

Pat Cessario, 1965 Homecoming Queen, crowns her successor.

Congratulations

Joe,
To someone who has done so much for our class and for the school that it would take three pages to give adequate thanks. You're really a wonderful person who certainly deserves all the success that I'm sure will come to you. Lots of love and luck always and may God bless you.
Love,
Annie

Ann Skinner,
1966 Homecoming Queen.

Joe, well how do you explain the most wonderful experience of my life on so small a page. Everything we did, no matter what was said, always turned out wonderful. How can I ever thank you for the help, guidence, and simply putting up with me, through all the nervous and troubled times. Throughout my life, even my short friendship with you will always hold a place in my heart. I have been a great pleasure working with, and being friends with you and all the great kids in the Chronicle room. The fights, parties, and good times will always be one of my fondest memories. May God keep and protect you always. May God watch over you always

Love

Joe- I can't write much because I don't know how to express what your friendship has meant to me in words. We have known each other very long but we have grown very close. I hope you have the best of luck next year at school. I'll always remember all the fun we had in the Chemelli Room, in school and out of school. Maybe next year we can play soldier together.

Good luck in everything you do in future

. . . offering friendship to the world Life is a time to be yourself.

We remember yesterday because its life has slipped from our fingers.
We live today because its life is ours.
We anticipate tomorrow because its life exists in our dreams.
But what is life?

It's giving a stranger a lick of your last lollipop

Life is a friend, a bluebird and a daisy It's a smile, laughter and tears
It's the gold of a daffodil
And the deep purple of lilacs It's the brilliance of autumn or the first snowfall of winter Life is the abounding hope of a coming dawn
And the ultimate tranquility of the setting sun
It's laughing with people, but not at them
Life is a word not spoken and yet understood But for some, a word spoken and misunderstood

It's eight in a telephone booth or wearing last years shoes . . .

It's encouragement in defeat

It's the unparalleled grandeur of an unfurled flag And the remorseful calling of taps at sundown
It's countries at war,
countries at peace,
and countries at both It's your friend, my brother and someone's son fighting for us in Viet Nam
It's a war that may never be won but must never be lost

It's decorating the tree two weeks early

Life is a chronicle of friendships It's having a friend named "Speed" who's really no older than you are It's giving a stranger a lick of your last lollipop and trading sandwiches It's three on a honda and eight in a telephone booth It's crying, unashamed, on someone's shoulder or wearing last year's shoes because you'd miss them if you threw 'em away

. . . sadness

It's planning an expedition to your next class but being detained in the kitchen

It's a beach, racing a wave and sand between your toes It's a mountain top at dawn or a clear, starlit night It's a bicycle built for two and a picnic basket It's taking a walk, just because you want to or skating or skiing It's having someone to talk to or be silent with It's saving six seats in the cafeteria and needing ten or eating soggy hamburgs under bright yellow arches

It's the new addition to the south courtyard

It's an original display in the upstairs showcase

It's a football game in the rain, a basketball game when the score reaches 67 and a baseball game with 13 innings
It's encouragement in defeat and congratulations in victory It's having a good day or a bad one or being in a mood and having friends who understand It's reading War and Peace in the library, together,
and flunking an exam with twin 53's It's one umbrella for four people in a sudden shower and putting your hand in someone's pocket to keep it warm It's copying notes for someone who's sick or bike riding before breakfast It's saying what you think and knowing someone will understand

It's thirty-six magnificent bread boxes

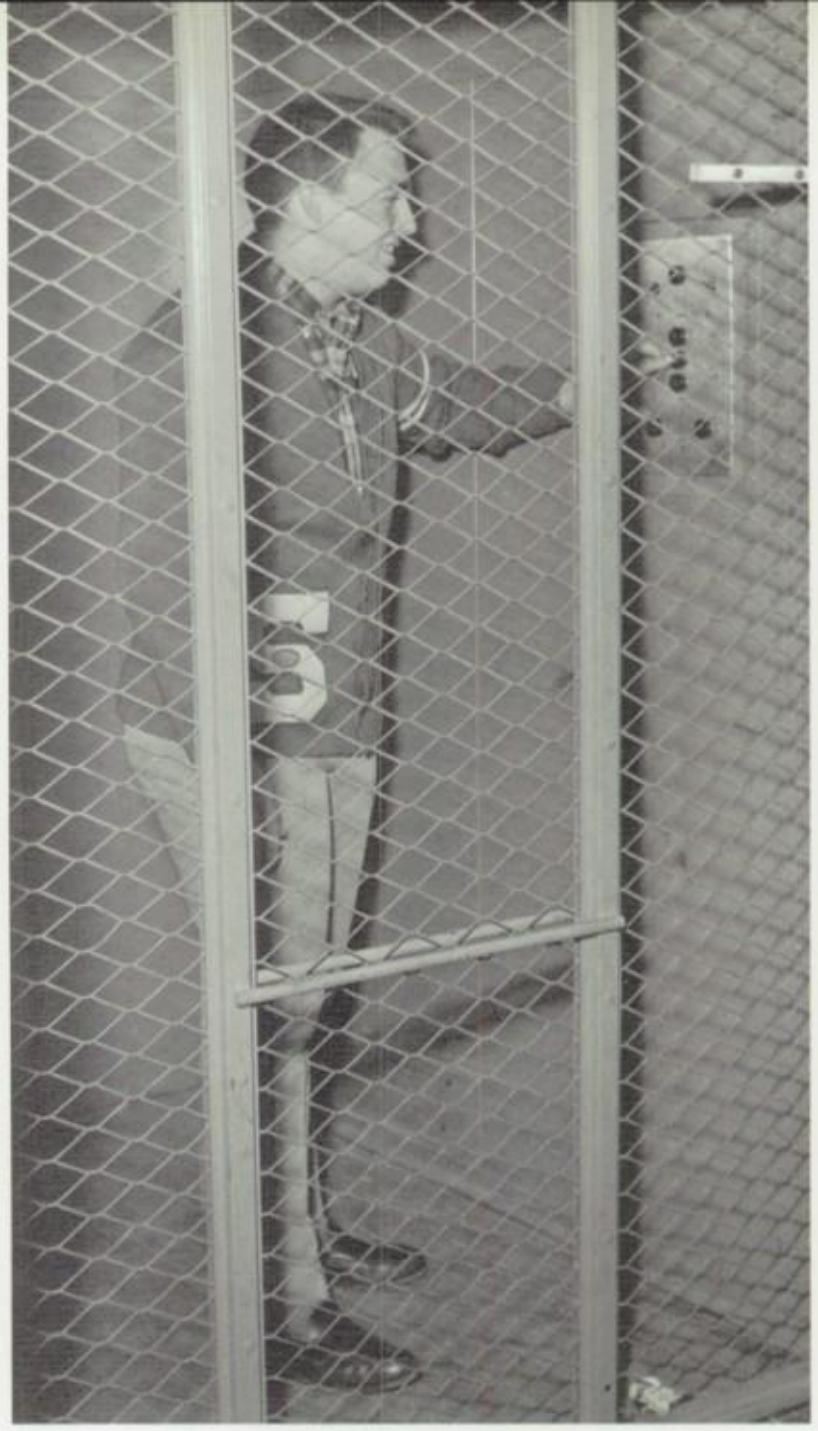
It's making a friend eat his vegetables because you know they're good for him It's a game of football at the "Rec" or a night of chess or cards It's searching for a mysterious lady but never quite finding her It's Christmas carols, hot chocolate, and cookies or a Christmas play in French class It's decorating the tree two weeks early and being alone, together, when the year changes



It's "Joe Society" sneaking upstairs on the elevator

"See no evil, hear no evil, speak no evil"

It's the boredom of a desert island before the gorgeous dancing girl arrives

Life is the persistent continuity of one day after another It's the unlimited expectation of Friday and the gradual recuperation of Monday It's enthusiasm, hope and anticipation but also indifference, dejection and disappointment It's contorted concentration and the horror of surprise It's the wistful thought of a day gone by and the matchless dream of a day to come or seeing a squirrel in knee-socks

or eating pizza with your trench coat on

Life is a giggle
It's eyes that sparkle with mischief but others that reflect only sadness It's controversy now and then just to make things interesting It's discussing things you've never discussed before and understanding what seemed so obscure It's a crazy dog who thinks he's a pilot or waiting for the Great Pumpkin

It's enthusiasm

It's Abadete upside down

Life is the living memory of school It's discussing Ayn Rand, e e cummings and the greatness of a man named Shakespeare It's reading Romeo and Juliet,
The Scarlett Letter and Macbeth or trying to comprehend sin, cos and tan It's realizing you've lost or mangled your frog's brain and the frustration of an unbalanced redox equation

or having legs not long enough to touch the ground

It's having a friend to help you into your locker

It's planning an expedition to your next class but being detained in the kitchen It's getting your PSATs and knowing they don't count or receiving your SAT scores . . .
and smiling
It's holding a press conference in the auditorium and knowing football players who act distinctly like cheerleaders at basketball games It's two doors to the library but only one works or an original display in the upstairs showcase It's finding the one good pencil sharpener in the whole school and whoopee . . .

and winning a skunk just your size

It's having a chauffeur for your push-cart

It's a classroom with no clock and Monday morning hoarseness after a game
It's thirty-six magnificent bread boxes comprising a complex emergency lighting system or a "See no evil, hear no evil, speak no evil" statue in the hall
It's "Joe Society" sneaking upstairs on the elevator and co-chairmen who don't know the answers It's rehearsing for the "Curious Savage" with no arguments
Would you believe just a few arguments?
It's the boredom of a desert island before the gorgeous dancing girl arrives
or seeing a squirrel in knee-socks

It's neither snow, nor rain, nor the heat of 5th period can keep the band from practicing It's listening to "grande petite Madame" or having your own gyrocopter
It's Abadete upside down
or eating pizza with your trench coat on It's the still silence when thunder and lightning are near or waiting in the guidance office until the coast is clear It's snow over the weekend but all plowed out by Monday It's climbing the ladder in the "C" room or reciting poetry through the vents It's being chosen Man of the Year Would you believe Student of the Week?

It's the wild pandemonium of 2:20

and the empty solitude of 2:21

Would you believe just a few arguments?

It's uncompromising respect for the man from Africa

It's having a friend to help you into your locker
and winning a skunk just your size It's having a chauffeur for your push-cart and trying to look unposed for the photographer It's uncompromising respect for the man from Africa
and an Israeli princess who teaches English It's making yourself at home on top of the lockers and then trying to brush the dust off your skirt It's the new addition in the south courtyard or sharing your coat with a lady who's cold

and an Israeli princess who teaches English

It's making yourself at home on top of the lockers

Life is confusion, complications and excitement
It's torted and contwisted
It's owning a cat who likes to eat Algebra homework
but a dog who prefers Advanced Math
It's the wild pandemonium of 2:20
and the empty solitude of 2:21
It's your first walk down the long corridor, alone or having legs not long enough to touch the ground It's laughing at something that's hilariously funny but when you think about it not so funny after all It's a ride to the game in a Volkswagen bus or coming to the play two days early It's a letter of acceptance from your first choice or second choice, or no choice at all It's a world renown pantomimist in algebra class or being nice

and trying to look unposed for the photographer

or coming to the play two days early

Life is dreams and reality
It's problems and solutions It's confusion, distrust and fear but also confidence, security and happiness

Life is a diploma,
a cap and a gown: the end.
Or is that the beginning?
Your life may be a monotonous progression:
meaningless.
You may be a dull non-entity:
uninteresting.
Or
You may be an alive personality with direction.
Your life may be a chronicle of discovery and happiness.

TO THE CLASS OF 1967

"Getting new ideas is often hard, frustrating work. It involves trying to find something without being able to say clearly what it is you are looking for. It involves being willing to be anxious and unresolved and willing to stay that way for a while. It involves deliberately trying to break the usual stereotypes and change the usual metaphors for the problem. It goes in cycles of excitement and depression. It is an emotion-laden process, and ministerial and managerial injunctions to be a man and suppress emotions don't help a bit."

IN MEMORIAM

We remember
. . . their able leadership and the inspiration they showed us
. . . their unselfish dedication to school and class
. . . their boundless energy and enthusiasm
. . . their constant consideration for each of us
. . . their quick laughter and easy smiles which brightened our way through disappointment and discouragement
. . . their unfailing friendship which can never be taken from us

We remember Mrs. Hilda Berube and her son, Ronnie, with respect, honor and love.

We will never forget.

1949-1967

MRS. HILDA BERUBE

. . . June 25th at 3:00 P.M.: Graduation 1967

. . . dignity, ceremony, and formality

. . . culminating four good years at Southington High School

. . . long gowns, misfitting caps, leather-encased diplomas and swaying tassels

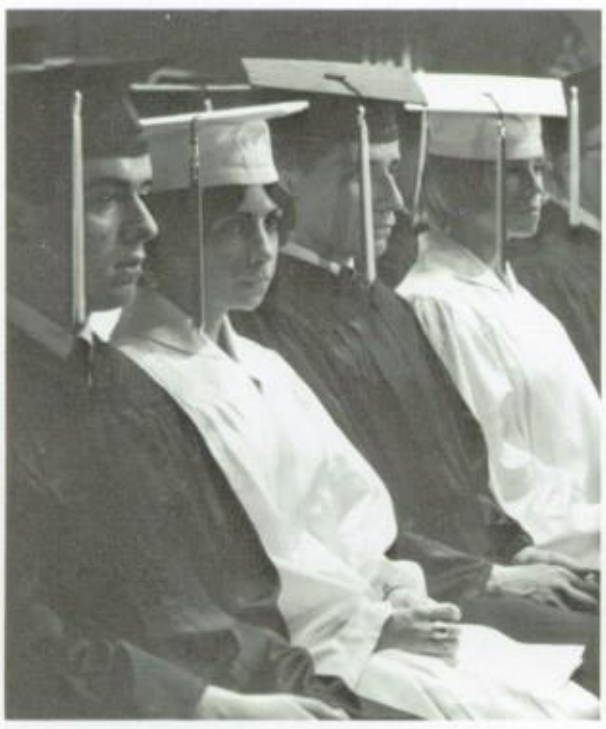
. . . a handshake of congratulations and finality

. . . laughter, tears, a smile, a kiss

. . . thoughtful reminiscences and a hopeful invitation to the future

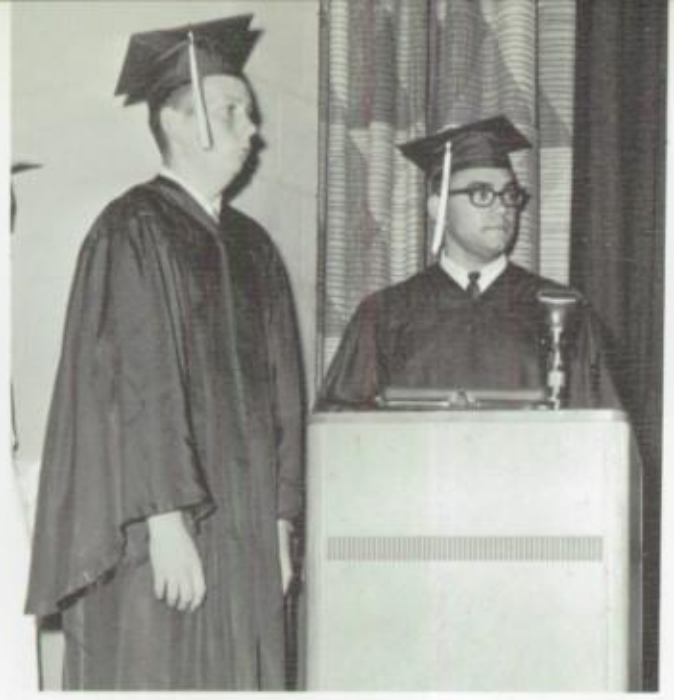
Some of the graduates take their places on stage.

Salutatorian Louise Keogh gives her speech.



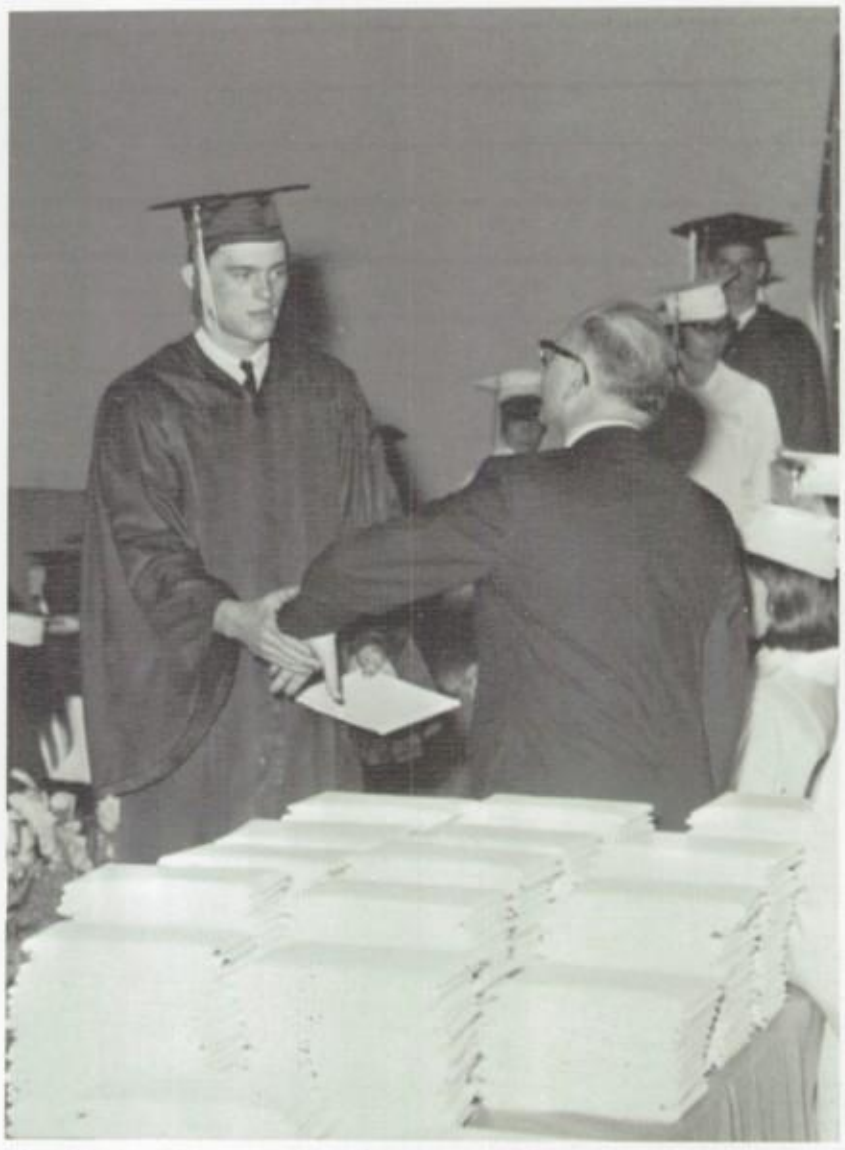
Thoughtful reminiscences.

Kathy Shepard delivers the Valedictory.



Essayist Joe Olszewski announces the graduates as Jim Wilkins waits his turn.

Contemplation.



Mr. Walter Derynoski, Chairman of the Board of Education, congratulates Dave Heckman.
